Review of the day
Isabel Van Rie Richards

At the beginning of day 2 (and day 3, if there is one), the content of the previous day is briefly summarized. There are several ways to cover this session.

Here are a few:

1. Presentation

The chairperson creates a small presentation on the evening before, in which the topics and happenings of day 1 (and 2) are mentioned.

How to create this presentation?

The presentation is to be created on the evening before and therefore not provided in the faculty support package. A template is provided, however.

Note: This should not be another lecture! Keep it short, concise, and interactive!

2. Word cloud

The chairperson creates a "word cloud" with the content used and discussed the day before. A Word Cloud is an image, in which the size of words represents the importance of certain content. The words which are mentioned more frequent will appear bigger. The example below (See Picture 1) shows a word cloud and is a summary of the text "Reflection methods", also available in the Faculty Support Package.

How can you create a Word Cloud?

1. Go to a platform which allows you to create a word cloud. There are many websites available. Here are a few:
   - www.wordle.net
   - www.tocloud.com
   - www.abcya.com/word_clouds

   There are also a few apps that create Word Clouds. One of them is:
   - "Tag Cloud"

2. Copy your content in the window which allows you to create your word cloud.
   The chairperson or the faculty team provides the content. An easy method is to use the written content (if there is any) of the reflection session the day before. An example:
   - During the reflection method each participant writes down one, two, three items, which they have learned that day (See the "one-minute-paper" method of reflection, available in the faculty support package).
   - The chairperson uses the content of those cards to create the word cloud. Note that all words must be copied even if they are repeated several times. Their frequency will eventually show the importance given by the participants to the respective words.

3. Create your word cloud.

Good to know:

1. The content of the word cloud can be adapted by limiting the number of words and removing small and less important words such "the", "a", "an", etc.

2. Color, font, and other lay out issues can be changed.

3. Once the word cloud is created you can:
   - Send the picture to your email address
   - Or take a screen shot of the created word cloud immediately and use it in your presentation.
3. Alphabet

The participants write a keyword, question, or remark near the corresponding letter of the alphabet. If desired and time is available, the chairperson briefly discusses some topics or answers a few questions. Other questions can be answered later in the day when more time is available.

How to organize this session?

1. Print out the table with the letters of the alphabet (See Picture 2 - Available in the faculty support package and to be printed out on A3-format). Several sheets are needed (eg, 1 sheet for 5–8 participants).

2. Distribute the sheets in the room and outside the room (eg, corridor). You can hang them up on a flipchart or put them down on a table. It is important that the different sheets are in different places. The more participants are taking part, the more sheets you need. Make sure that you provide a marker or pen together with each sheet.

3. During the session the participants write in silence on one of the sheets a question or keyword, which starts with the respective letter and which reflects on the content of the day before. At the same time the participants also read what is written by their peers.
4. In the end, the chairperson collects the sheets. As mentioned already they can discuss some items with the entire group or keep the information and answer questions later on, if required.

5. Reflection cards

The participants describe a picture reflecting content which presented the day(s) before.

Do not choose this method as warm up session if it was already used as reflection session the day before.

How to organize this session?

1. Place all cards on the floor. The pictures must be visible.
   - The reflection cards can be downloaded from the AOTrauma Faculty Support Package for ORP.
   - Print out all cards and separate all pictures/illustrations so that individual postcard size cards become available.
2. All participants form a circle around the cards.
3. All participants pick up one card. The cards should visualize something which they have learned.
4. Each participant says something about the picture that he/she has picked up.
